

Form For Unilateral Termination Of The Contract

The consumer has the right to request unilateral termination of the contract within 14 days of purchase of the product, without stating the reasons for the same according to the Consumer Protection Act, Article 77 in the Republic of Croatia (valid throughout the EU).

The consumer has the right to submit a request for unilateral termination of the contract, which begins to run from the date of delivery, ie from the date on which the consumer personally picked up the shipment.

The consumer is obliged to submit a written notice to the trader stating that he is terminating the contract, in order to exercise his right to unilateral termination of the contract, which must contain the consumer's information specified in this form stating that he is terminating the contract.

Written notice can be delivered by mail to the company's address or by e-mail.

The consumer who exercises the right to unilateral termination shall not bear the costs incurred in this connection, except for the costs of returning the goods.

The consumer may request a refund only after the return of the goods and determination of the correctness of the goods and non-damage by the consumer, together with the invoice, and no later than 14 days from the date of written notice of unilateral termination of the trade contract.

The consumer will be provided with an acknowledgment of receipt of the notice of unilateral termination of the contract by e-mail.
